

STATE PRIMARY WILL BE HELD HERE, SATURDAY

Forty Democratic Candidates to Be Voted on—Cantrill Seenas Choice
For Governor Nominee in This Section

REPUBLICANS PLAY MINOR PART IN THIS ELECTION

About forty Democratic candidates will be voted on at the State Primary Saturday. Offices for which men will be chosen as candidates by the Democrats are: Governor, lieutenant governor, treasurer, secretary of state, auditor, commissioner of agriculture, clerk of the court of appeals and attorney general.

Owing to the fact that the Republicans have had a state convention in which their gubernatorial candidate was selected, they will not figure largely in the coming primary.

Everything seems to be ready for the primary in Middlesboro. There are four voting places here: The opera house, the South Side at the City Barber shop, the West End at Heaton's store and the city hall.

Interest centers around the gubernatorial candidate race. While it is the general opinion that Cantrill will carry Middlesboro, this is by no means certain. Barkley also has a following here. Many influential citizens favor both candidates.

Of course this traditionally a Republican section but the number of Democrats here is not negligible. Estimates by men in a position to know say there are about five hundred voting Democrats in Middlesboro and vicinity.

Men of this political faith are taking a great deal of interest in the coming primary, each being confident of the success of the man he supports, and all being confident of a Democratic victory in the fall election.

Complete ballots have not been furnished Middlesboro, so far as is known they will be received before Saturday and the names given due publicity.

Dual Death Is a Puzzle

KANSAS, CITY, Aug. 1.—A scientific Sherlock Holmes is needed to untangle the mystery which has split authorities here into two factions.

A rich undertaker, William M. McClure, was found dead on a slab in his own morgue.

His employee, Mrs. Eula Thompson, 35-year-old widow, was found dead at the bottom of the establishment's elevator shaft.

Into McClure's shaft had been plunged a sharp knife.

The theory first advanced was that McClure, seeing Mrs. Thompson dying in the shaft, where she had accidentally fallen, became temporarily insane and killed himself.

Police and coroner split on the possible solution. The former think Mrs. Thompson could not have fallen down the shaft accidentally and enured the injuries alleged to have been found on her body. These were said to be marks apparently made from a dull instrument.

But the coroner holds fast to the accident—temporarily insane—suicide theory.

The woman had worked for McClure for about a year.

The undertaker, whose wife was an invalid, was wealthy. He was planning to build the most elaborate undertaking place in the middle west. He had just installed his family in a new magnificent home.

And again the question is asked by those seeking a light:

Would a man, so familiar with death, become insane at the sight of anyone who accidentally fell into an elevator shaft?

BATTLE TELLS COAL PROBLEMS

Speaker Suggests Deportation As Best Way to Clear Coal Fields of Radicals

By Associated Press
KNOXVILLE, Aug. 1.—"There is no real coal problem; there is a labor problem and a transportation problem," said John D. Battle, traffic manager of the National Coal association in speaking for the bituminous operators' special committee at the meeting of the Rotary club Monday.

Mr. Battle outlined the coal situation from 1917 up to the present time, saying: "In 1917 the railroad had more coal than they could handle and prices were reasonable; in 1918 the government took over the operation of the railroads and the distribution of coal; in 1919 coal prices were very low, and union strikes caused trouble in many branches of industry; in 1920 prices advanced, but at present no trouble is anticipated and coal production is ahead of a normal year."

Propaganda Thrives

In discussing the coal question and the reasons for it, Mr. Battle said: "An upheaval in the coal industry and railroads always follows labor disturbances. Coal fields are the best places for the circulation of I. W. W. propaganda and all kinds of radicalism and this gives rise to a serious problem that eventually affects everyone in the country." To show the attitude of the I. W. W. organization he read a bulletin published recently in a Chicago paper which said in part: "Everybody on the job—but everybody loaf. When we strike we stop profits for employers but we stop expenses too. Now we must all be on the job. Drawing wages but making no profits for the boss. It is not necessary to break any laws to do this. Figure out just how little work you can do and do that and no more." The solution of this problem is to return to the old-fashioned Americanism and deport all such agitators is the opinion of Mr. Battle.

Explain High Price

"Coal prices are high because the consumer wants special kinds of coal which necessitates the expense of separating the various qualities at the mine. All kinds are sold on a competitive market and for this reason none but the best quality can be sold high enough to make any profit," said Mr. Battle. "In addition to this, overhead expenses are great when laborers work only three or four days a week and several shifts must be employed. Storing coal at the mines for future distribution is not advisable," he continued. "For this coal is more expensive than freshly mined coal due to the cost of loading and unloading in the storage bins."

In taking up the transportation problem, Mr. Battle said that different government agencies fix freight rates and the railroad officials have little real power but railway facilities are better now than ever before. Over one million cars of revenue freight are loaded each week at present and coal for the Northwest and New England, which are usually the hardest sections to supply, are several million tons ahead and no trouble in the fall is anticipated.

OPERATORS ASK FOR FOREIGN LABOR

Mining Congress to Urge Letting Down
Immigration Barriers a Little

By Associated Press
MILWAUKEE, Aug. 1.—Fewer restrictions on immigration to meet an alleged need of additional laborers in the mining industry will be discussed by the American Mining Congress to meet here September 21-23. Nearly 3,000 owners, operators and mining engineers are expected to be in attendance.

Although mining men appreciate the unwisdom of breaking down the immigration barriers entirely, they feel there should be no abridgement of opportunity in the United States for effective labor and for selecting the right type of immigrant, according to officials of the organization.

A national movement for industrial cooperation between employer and employee in mining enterprises also is to be launched here. Ways and means of assisting employees in maintaining proper standards of living also will be discussed.

The United States bureau of mines and the geological survey will participate in the exposition, and the mining states of California, Colorado and Utah will exhibit displays of their mine resources and equipment.

Additional emphasis will be placed on the use of labor saving machinery and equipment in mining enterprises. The American Mining Congress, officials say, has been advocating modernization of the mining industry and the standardization of basic methods for the last three years.

Henry Ford 8 to 1 Shot For President; Harding 5 to 1

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The first money for betting on next year's presidential election has appeared in Wall Street.

President Harding is considered a 5 to 1 shot. Odds on Henry Ford and William G. McAdoo are quoted at 8 to 1.

There is $50,000 ready to be bet at 1 to 15 that Ford will be the next president.

Another man, backing Governor Al Smith of New York, has $2,000 (but he is holding in the hope of getting odds of 20 to 1).

These figures, the first intimation of the trend of the betting world on the big political race of 1924, were given in an interview with Nea Service by B. De Chadenes, a Wall Street broker who is noted for handling some of the largest political bets made during the past 10 years.

"More money will be bet on the next presidential election," said De Chadenes, "than on any election in history. Probably none of the big bets will be placed until next summer. But brokers and speculators are already beginning to figure out probable odds. Ten million dollars was bet on the Harding-Cox fight in 1920, according to estimates. Two million was bet on the Smith-Miller race for governor of New York last fall."

Opinions vary on probable odds. State-makers, considering possibilities and near-possibilities, have made up a list of 20 Republicans and 20 Democrats who have been "mentioned" as presidential flatter.

"Henry Ford is a big factor in any such future book," said De Chadenes. "Assuming he is a Democrat, one could probably get odds of 5 to 1 against his nomination."

"The best bet that would probably be taken against Ford for the presidency would be 8 to 1, the same as McAdoo, but I know of a broker who will now lay 1 to 15 that he will be elected. In other words, the man who wishes to bet on Ford is demanding 15 to 1 for his money, while those disposed to bet against him probably would want to give odds higher than 8 to 1."

"Next to Ford and McAdoo, among the Democrats, Al Smith is given the best chance at 15 to 1. Former President Woodrow Wilson, former Governor Cox and Senators Underwood of Alabama, Glass of Virginia, Rabston of Indiana and Edwards of New Jersey, and former Secretary of State Colby, Wilson's law partner, are all 20 to 1 shots."

"Two of Wilson's former cabinet members, Baker and Daniels, and Senator Robinson of Arkansas are easily 30 to 1. Bryan is 10 to 1 shot. And anybody can get 50 to 1 against such candidates as former Ambassador Davis, former Supreme Court Justice (Clarke), Senator Reed of Missouri, former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, Mayor Hylan of New York and William H. Taft."

Ham Randolph Hearst.

"William Johnson of California at 10 to 1 is the next best bet to Harding among the Republicans with Secretaries Hoover and Hughes close behind at 12 to 1. Senator LaFollette, General Wood, Secretary Mellon, Senator Lodge, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Senator Watson of Indiana are all 20 to 1 shots."

"You can get 25 to 1 against young Theodore Roosevelt and former Governor Miller of New York, and 30 to 1 against Senator Borah, Senator Capier, former Governor Lowden of Illinois and former Governor Allen of Kansas. Will Hays, the old Republican chairman and now running the movies, is a long shot like former Senator Beveridge of Indiana at 40 to 1. Judge Kenyon, the former senator from Iowa, and Colonel Harvey, the ambassador to Great Britain, are 50 to 1 easily."

De Chadenes says politics is the favorite field of the big bettor. Where millions are wagered on an election, he says less than $100,000 was bet on the last world's baseball series, and under $100,000 on the Dempsey-Gibbons fight. "The biggest single bet I've seen go through," he said, "was in 1917 when one man bet $125,000 to $150,000 that Mayor Hylan would beat John Purroy Mitchel—and won. The biggest bet last election was $50,000 against $55,000 on Governor Smith."

Wall Street's biggest betting shock came last year when W. B. Ketcham, a wealthy Seattle man, brought half a million dollars to bet on Al Smith for governor and Royal Copeland for Senator. He is reputed to have won close to $100,000.

The only bet he lost, and classed as a freakish bet, was $5,000 against $100,000 that Smith would beat Miller by 400,000 votes. He made the bet when Miller was a 6 to 5 favorite. His judgment, amazing Wall Street, was almost vindicated when Smith won by 285,945 votes.

ANY NEW COMPLICATIONS SEEN AS IMPROBABLE

By Associated Press
Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Aug. 1.—President Harding today seemed certain of recovery, barring an improbably development of new complications in his illness or an equally improbable increase in present ones. He awoke at six o'clock after seven hours sleep, almost normal amount.

An official statement issued at 10 o'clock by five doctors attending the President said he was still much exhausted but maintains his normal buoyancy of spirit. At that hour the bulletin said the President was breathing more easily than previously and he had but little cough. His lung condition was about the same as yesterday. Small amounts of food are being taken, while progress is being made for every care necessary to assure freedom from further complications.

An informal statement by the President's physician issued at eight o'clock said the President spent a very restful night and his pulse was then one hundred and fourteen, his temperature, ninety-nine and his respiration forty. Figures represent a decrease in pulse rate and temperatures as compared with the last previous bulletin. His respiration rate in each bulletin was the same.

MOUNTAINEER SHOT BY SON IS DYING

Youth—Accidentally—Shots Father,
When Latter Enters Home Without Warning

By Associated Press
LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1.—The body penetrated by a bullet from a .45 caliber automatic pistol, Henry Fugate, 60 years old, of Nobel, Breathitt County, is dying at a hospital here and efforts of hospital authorities to reach his wife, Ellen, or any one of his fifteen children, have proved fruitless.

The old mountaineer, iron-gray hair, bushy mustache and beard, broad shouldered and big framed, was accidentally shot by his own boy, Alfred, the youngest of seven sons and eight daughters, last Wednesday night when the father approached and entered his own home without warning the family he was coming.

Fugate was shot in the lower part of the left side, the bullet ranging downward across, coming down near the middle of the back.

Realizing the seriousness of his condition, the patriarch for the first time attempted to give details of the shooting. Shot of breath, and forced because of coughing to pause in his recital, Fugate said he was coming up a hollow toward his home "and it was plumb foolish of me to do so," making no sound and he neared the house. He went toward the door and started in without hollering, hearing no noise on the inside, when his son, at the door, fired upon him, when he stepped in. He fell headlong at his boy's feet. "It was plumb foolish for me to go in without making some noise to let them know I was coming, and it was plumb foolish for Alfred to shoot without making some sign," the old man said.

When told that every effort possible was being made to get his relatives down to the hospital, he said he guessed they couldn't come, as they all were too poor.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW OBSERVANCE

In a consultation of law enforcement a topic generally before the public it is interesting to regard the Sunday closing law provided for by both Kentucky statute and city ordinance. The open disregard for such a law in this city is such as to cause comment from the outside if not from citizens who live here.

Because of the peculiarly spread out distribution of population in Middlesboro there are dozens of little grocery stores scattered throughout the city each of them serving a small community, and none of them with an extensive trade. There are a great number of these smaller groceries between the railroad bridge and the city limits in the East End. The greater part of this group of stores makes no pretense of keeping closed on Sunday. Added to this are other places of business on Lathbury, Ashbury and Vine street and some on Cumberland Avenue which are scarcely ever shut on Sunday.

America as a Christian nation has always stood for strict observance of the Sabbath and in most places this has been adhered to as a matter of principle if it were not required by law. Here we boast of our pure American blood and our organizations for law enforcement yet these same persons who take this proud stand are in many cases the ones guilty of this offense against the Sabbath.

If a sense of pride or an honest desire to live by the doctrine and the laws of our state and city are not enough to influence these store owners, however stronger methods should be used. The city officials should see that this Sunday closing law is strictly enforced and see to it in such a way that the violators will know what they are talking about.

THE FLAIR OF PUNISHMENT

It is convincingly proven that a wholesome fear of punishment is the only thing that will curb the speed mania that seems to possess a large portion of those who drive motor cars. The news reports are full of accounts of fatalities resulting from reckless driving of automobiles. In one day alone the traffic court of Detroit handled 641 cases for the violation of the traffic laws. It is stated by the Battle Creek Empire that this large docket is directly traceable to leniency in the punishment of those arrested by the Detroit police.

Several years ago Judge Bartlett placed in charge of the Detroit traffic court saw that the warnings and fines assessed against speeders was ineffective and that some punishment more drastic than fines was needed to put a stop to wholesale violations of traffic regulations. He adopted the policy of imposing full sentences upon those who were making a mockery of the law and the effect was almost instantaneous. Instead of hundreds of such violations in a single day the number dropped to a few dozen and on some days not a single case was presented. Judge Bartlett became famous throughout the country for his course was generally commended and his policy copied in many communities where the traffic courts were presided over by men of character, rather than by easy going politicians.

While Judge Bartlett remained in charge of the traffic court the motor ists of Detroit reported he saw a man in the way station in the morning but of violations began to increase and now the case more than six hundred a day in that city.

The same state of affairs exists throughout the land. Leniency in law enforcement gives to business crime and misdemeanors and in return is this from them in the case of traffic law violation. Let a punishment be the only deterrent. From the Herald.

It was dusk when the darkness into Callison's last evening and again to have a new crystal put on his watch. The crystal was broken and the date key handed Mr. Callison a $250 gold piece with the remark, "Is that your money?" Mr. Callison it isn't mine.

On investigation Mr. Callison found that it was one of the pieces which had been left out of a box on the counter under the day through in over night. The man was C. W. Reminiscences of Bygone Days
In Middlesboro and Vicinity

In this series of interviews from men who have lived here since the beginning of Middlesboro actual incidents witnessed by the narrator will be recorded. Reflecting as they do a time when killing was no unusual occurrence, the matter of fact manner in which these were considered now lend to them a humorous aspect.

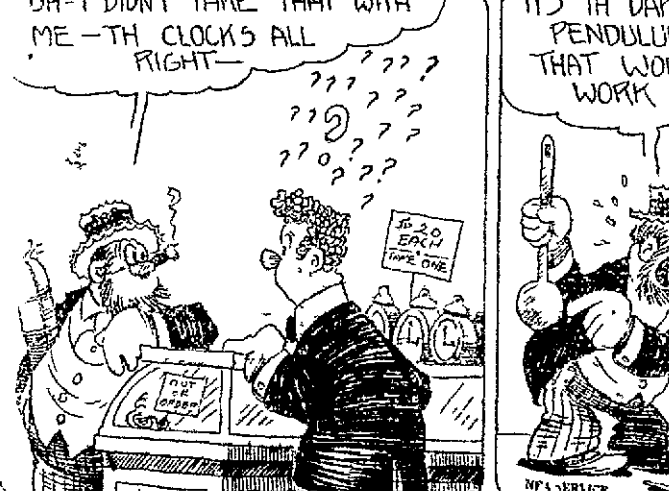

The incident subsequently related was told the reporter by Judge L. K. Rice, city prosecuting attorney.

It happened at Italian back about the year 1884 before Middlesboro as a town existed, not however before each man had his private feud which called for a display of marksmanship whenever the opportunity came.

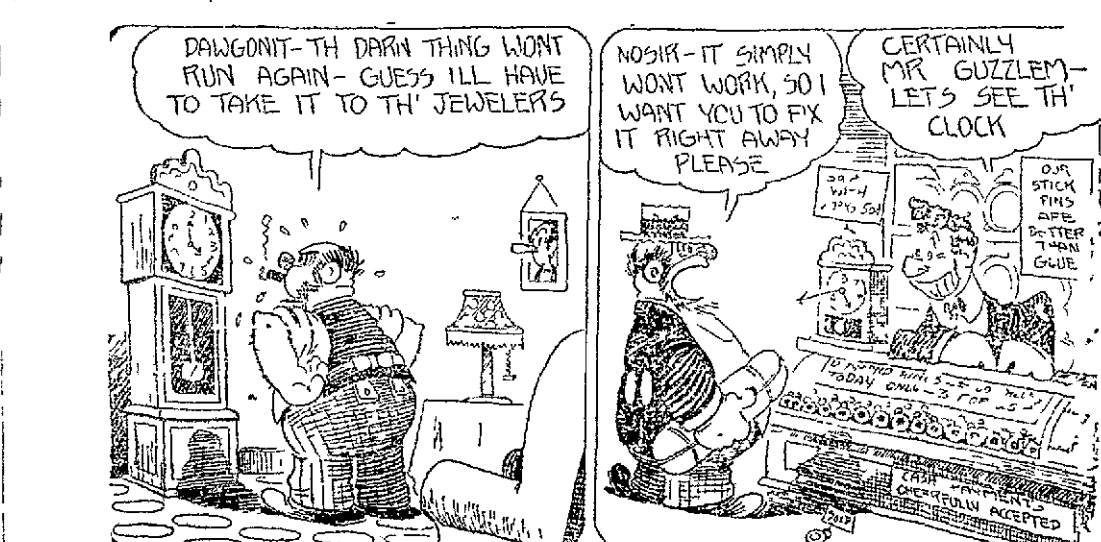

A crowd of men were standing near the court house when a shot was fired. A man who had for some time been an active participant in various private feuds put his hand over his head indicating that the bullet had found a mark.

Who done that, he asked, glancing at a few days later.

PREFERENCE

I'd rather be
A surging Sea,
Where waves are dark and tossed;
A roaring, restless, rocky Sen,
Where ships and men are lost,
Than be a Lake
Without a break,
Where just a ripple stirs,
And just the wiggle of a trout
Or bug or worm occurs.
I'd rather brave
The cruel wave
Though danger was in sight,
And know the terrors of the deep
And thrill with its delight,
Than calmly lean,
Secure, serene,
Against a narrow rail
That ran around a peaceful Lake
Where not a ship could soil.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Jelly Making

Be sure that the sugar you use for canning, preserving and jelly making is pure cane sugar. Beet sugar will not make good jelly.

Clear sparkling jelly is the result of quick work in boiling the fruit juice and great care in extracting the juice. The first juice which comes through the jelly bag will make the clearest jelly.

It is better not to try to make too much at one time. The wider the kettle the better because quick evaporation means a light colored jelly. Heat the sugar before adding it to the juice. This does not cool the juice or retard boiling as much as if cold sugar were used. The sugar is heated in the oven after measuring.

Apple Jelly

Astorian apples can be used for jelly if practically ripe. The jelly will not be as light colored. Other varieties are used for jelly when quite green. Wash and quarter apples. Remove any bad spots and defective cores. Put in preserving kettle with just enough water to prevent burning. Cook rapidly to a pulp. Put into jelly bag and let drain over night.

Measure juice. Put juice in clean preserving kettle and boil rapidly. Skim as much as possible and add warmed sugar slowly. Do not let boiling stop while adding sugar. Boil rapidly until a teaspoonful of juice tried on a cold plate forms jelly.

Pour into sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin when cold. Astorian apples will "jell" if three-fourths cup of sugar is used for every cup of juice. Most other varieties, containing less pectin, require measure for measure of sugar and juice.

Old-time jelly makers put a rose geranium leaf in the bottom of part of the jelly glasses. The boiling syrup extracted enough of the real fragrance to delicately flavor the jelly. Mint was often used in the same fashion except that the sprig was removed from the glass before the jelly hardened.

Grape Jelly

Grape jelly should be made before the grapes ripen.

Strip grapes from stems and wash. Put in preserving kettle with a very little water, just enough to prevent burning. Bring to the boiling point and boil rapidly until the skins burst open. Put in jelly bag and let drain over night. If grapes are cooked early in the morning five or six hours will extract the juice, and jelly can be made the same day.

Do not squeeze the jelly bag as this

GIRLS' SUMMER CAMPS

BY JANE DEETER RIPPIN
National Director, Girls Scouts

What about food? That is the eternal eleventh-hour question that campers face. The girl who knows what to take along is a valuable addition to the camping party.

Usually many unnecessary articles are included in the store of provisions, and many necessary things are left behind. Out of experience comes wisdom, and you will be wise if you are guided by the lists given here, including non-perishable supplies and special purchases, the two combining for a sample menu.

A very good list of non-perishable food sufficient for a two weeks' camping trip by an average number of six girls, follows:

Vegetables—One and one-half quarts beans (dried), 2 cans beans (string), 2 cans corn, 1 package macaroni, 1 1-4 pounds onions, 2 cans peas, 1-2 bushel potatoes, 1 1-2 pounds rice, 5 cans tomatoes, 2 cans tomato soup.

Fruits—One pound apricots, 1 small bottle cherries, 1 dozen lemons, 1 can peaches, 1-2 pound peaches (dried), 1 can pears, 1 can pineapple, 3 pounds prunes, 1 package raisins.

Cereals—Two packages cornflakes, 1 package Cream of Wheat, 2 packages Grape-nuts, 1 package oat meal, 1 package Wheatena, 1-2 pound crackers, 1-4 pound graham crackers, 1 1-2 pounds cookies.

Dairy, Meat, Fish—Three pounds bacon, 12 pounds butter, 1 1-2 pounds cheese, 3 dozen eggs, 1 pound pork (salt), 2 cans salmon.

Miscellaneous—One-fourth pound baking powder, 1-4 pound bran, 1 pound chocolate, 1-2 pound coconut, 1 1-2 pounds coffee, 1-4 pound tea, 1-4 bag flour, 1 1-4 pounds corn meal, 1 small package cornstarch, 1 pound crisco, 1 package gelatin, 1 1-2 pounds honey, 2 pounds jam, 1 quart mayonnaise, 1-2 pint molasses, 1-2 pint olives (stuffed), 1 small can paprika, 1 pound salt, 1 can pepper, 12 pounds sugar, 1 package tapioca, 1-2 pint vanilla.

Six of you will not require more than two loaves of bread daily and five quarts of milk daily. If cream is desired for coffee, one-half pint every other day is sufficient. Here is a sample list of daily specials that will help to supply the accompanying menu for the week:

Saturday—One-half dozen bananas, 1 pound beans (string), 1 pound chipped beef, 1 head lettuce, 1-2 pint peanuts, 1 dozen rolls.

Sunday—One large chicken, 3 grapefruits, 1 quart ice cream, 1 head lettuce, 1-2 peck spinach.

Monday—One bunch carrots, 1-2 pint cream, 2 heads lettuce, 1 quart strawberries.

Tuesday—One-fourth peck apples, 2 bananas, 1 1-2 pounds beef for stewing, 2 heads lettuce, 1-2 dozen oranges.

Wednesday—One-fourth peck apples, 1 loaf Boston brown bread, 1-4 pound cottage cheese, 1-4 ham, 1 watermelon.

Thursday—2 bananas, 1 loaf Boston brown bread, 1 quart blackberries, 1-2 pint cream, 1 bunch rhubarb.

Friday—Three grapefruit, 3 pounds halibut or a leg of lamb, 2 heads lettuce, 1-2 peck spinach.

With this guide for the first week in camp any girl ought to be able to make up a menu for the second week and buy perishable food without waste.

makes the juice cloudy and the jelly will not be clear. Measure juice and return to the fire. Bring quickly to the boiling point and boil ten minutes. Add as many cups of sugar as there were cups of juice. Boil rapidly until juice "jells" when tried on a cold plate.

Blackberry and Apple Jelly

Use equal parts of apple and blackberry juice. Add the juice of one lemon to four cups of the combined juices. Boil ten minutes, add 3 cups warm sugar and boil until syrup jells when tried on a cold plate.

Many fruits that will not "jell" by themselves can be combined with apple juice. This makes a firm jelly with the "other" fruit flavor predominating.

Co-Operatives Successful After Nearly Century

MEMBERS CO-OPERATIVE FOOD AND SHOE WORKS

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The fact that in the life of the English household that distinguishes him from the American is the fact that is a consumer of food and clothing, he joins with other consumers to try to lighten the burden of the cost of living.

In America we are familiar with workmen co-operating to get better wages, hours and working conditions. We also are familiar with employers banding together to present a common front of labor and to watch their interests in legislatures and Congress. But American consumers of goods have not yet learned to band together as the English.

The English cooperative movement has passed the experimental stage. It is a huge success. It is a permanent feature of British life.

In Newly Laid City

Practically every city and big town in England has its cooperative retail society. And they flourish mightily in proportion to the population with exception of London.

London is so big that it is only in the suburbs where the workers live that the co-ops make themselves felt. For up to now it would be misleading to say that the cooperative movement is still largely a working class movement. The big and the small class from snobbery and other causes, has not as yet gone in for co-operation.

The formation of a cooperative retail society has become almost standardized. When a number of consumers think of forming a society they apply either to the Cooperative Wholesale Society or the Cooperative Union for rules and advice. With facts and figures before them these organizations know just about how many members and how much capital it is necessary to raise before a cooperative store can be started with a reasonable chance for success.

Anybody can buy in the shop but only those who are share owners can as a rule set the monthly share.

BOBBY AND JESSE CARRY ON HARVARD-YALE FEUD

Once upon a time Harvard and Yale were content to fight a supreme duel in the diamond and on the green.

When other colleges began to challenge their right to superiority in these branches of sport, the Crimson and the Blue turned to other fields.

Golf is the very latest sport in which Harvard and Yale claim pre-eminence. Ten years ago it had no place in college athletics but now it is going big. Many institutions have their own private courses.

Crimson Claims Jones

Harvard claim to distinction in golf has been in doubt for some time. It is not necessary to comment on Bobby Jones' prowess as a golfer. It is the new national open champion supplanting Gene Sarazen.

Yale had for some time with Jesse Sweetseter, national amateur champion. Sweetseter drew the spotlight last fall when he went through one of the classiest fields ever entered in the amateur event.

FAIL TO FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS

Secretary of State Tells of Incompetent Methods of Candidates

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 31.—Failure of more than a dozen Democratic and Republican candidates for office in the primary of August 4 to file their expense accounts and the inability of dozens of other office seekers to properly fill out the blanks sent them today prompted Fred A. Vaughan, secretary of state, to wonder how some of the candidates can cast their votes properly in the event they are elected.

Mr. Vaughan declared that he had had a trouble in making the office seekers conform to the statutory requirements. Forms were sent out to be filled in, he said, and many of them were returned to Mr. Vaughan. One apparently was unable to sign his name as the paper was signed by his maid.

This year Mr. Vaughan took particular pains to make the forms simple so that no man could be made in filling them out, he said. Full instructions were placed at the head of each sheet and at each time to be filled in carefully worded instructions were given. Despite this many forms were returned with expenditures and receipts entered in the wrong places according to Mr. Vaughan.

Some time before the date set for the filing of expense accounts, Mr. Vaughan said that he notified all candidates that they must comply with the statutes. In spite of this warning, he said, many did not send their expense accounts. Some candidates were sent in their expenditures in the form of a letter. Some papers were not sworn to and others merely told what the candidate himself had spent and did not mention expenditures made by managers or friends as required by statute. Mr. Vaughan gave as his opinion that the corrupt practices act now on the statutes does not prevent corrupt practices and fraud in spending money as candidates if they so desired can evade the questions and spend money freely through friends. Several candidates, according to Mr. Vaughan, did not send in their experience accounts until after the expiration of the five day limit that requires the filing of expense accounts between 15 and 10 days before the primary. This made the final date on which accounts could be received this year July 25. Some of the accounts were received two days later and some have not arrived yet, Mr. Vaughan said.

SCRUB STOCK ON DECREASE

Nation-wide Better Stock Campaign Having Good Effect In Kentucky

By Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1.—Scrub and grade livestock slipped another notch in its hold on the livestock industry of Kentucky during the fifteenth quarter of the nation-wide "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, according to a report just received at the College of Agriculture.

During the quarter ended more farmers and livestock breeders were enrolled in the campaign in Kentucky than in any other state, 427 of them having signed up to use nothing but pure-bred sires in all their breeding work, according to the report. Kentucky is still fourth among all states in the number of members who have been enrolled in the drive against scrub and grade breeding animals, but the record enrollment record for the fifteenth quarter from the blue grass state materially lessened the gap between Kentucky and Nebraska, the third highest state in number of enrollments.

Kentucky now has 1,292 persons who have agreed to use nothing but pure-bred sires in all their breeding work, while Nebraska, just ahead of Kentucky in the national standing, has 1,414 members in the drive. Ohio, the leading state, has 2,713 members.

Union county, where County Agent L. C. Brewer is working with the college in advancing the campaign, came to the front during the fifteenth quarter of the drive with 193 enrollments and with Oldham county now has a place in the honor list of 25 counties in the United States in which more than 100 members have been enrolled in the drive. Union county now has a total of 226 members in the campaign, while County Agent Gordon B. Nance, of Oldham county, has enrolled a total of 218 members. Union and Oldham counties stand fourth and fifth respectively in the standing of the 25 honor counties of the country.

The campaign, which is being carried on to replace scrub and grade breeding animals of the farms of the country with purebreds, is being conducted through the cooperation of the federal department of agriculture, state agricultural colleges and county agricultural agents. All persons who enroll in the campaign agree to use nothing but purebred sires in all breeding work.

ORCHARD POINTERS FROM NEIGHBORS

Up-to-date Methods in Fruit Production Investigated in County Tours

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1.—Up-to-date and practical methods of fruit production recommended for Kentucky conditions are being stressed this summer by horticultural workers of the College of Agriculture by means of county tours in which interested farmers and fruit growers visit representative orchards in their respective vicinities and see the application of the practices under actual field conditions. One of the most recent and most successful of the tours has just been held in McCracken county with an average of approximately 150 people taking part in the trip, which lasted two days.

The McCracken county tour, which was arranged through the cooperation of the McCracken County Fruit Growers' Association, the agricultural college and The Kentucky State Horticultural Society, took in five commercial apple and peach orchards covering close to 200 acres and involving thousands of trees and brought many new pointers in fruit raising to the attention of those who took part. Orchards visited included those of W. T. and Henry Beyer, J. K. Ewalt, S. C. Magruder, Squire Herbert Anderson and Ben Smathers.

The value of using nitrate of soda on fruit trees; how to control peach leaf curl; how to cut back and prune trees; the control of peach tree borers by means of parathion or benzene, the new chemical being used to save trees from the pest; the use of power pressure sprayers; practical methods of building up orchard lands for bigger yields; the value and kinds of cover crops to use; how to protect fruit trees from rabbits and mice, and how to get greater fruit production by the checking wood growth were some of the things brought out in the inspection of the various orchards.

THIS YEAR'S GARDEN

Late Radishes—Space should be reserved in the garden for the planting of late radishes during the first two weeks in September. The White Vienna and the Chantrelle are the two varieties that do best for late planting. One ounce of seed is enough for 100 feet of row and the seed should be planted about one-half inch deep in rows that are about 12 to 15 inches apart.

Onions—For early green onions in the spring potato onion sets are planted in September. A row or two of these will prove well worth while for those who like early green onions. It takes from one to two quarts of sets for a hundred feet of row.

Celery—Celery is a plant that requires very thorough cultivation to conserve all moisture possible. The first cultivation of this crop should be towards the rows so that the trenches in which it is growing are filled gradually. Then about the first of October more soil should be added to the plants, thus forming a ridge. This ridging should be continued until the tops of the stalks are all that are exposed.

Just before freezing weather sets in the entire tops of the rows should be covered with straw. This is what is known as the dirt method of blanching celery. Some prefer to use paper, wrapping each individual bunch of celery, others use boards and still others use drain tile. From four to six weeks are required to properly blanch the plants with dirt. The other methods, in which paper, boards and the tile are used, will blanch celery in less time than is needed when dirt is used.

CULLING CUTS FEED BILL FOR POULTRY

Approved Method for Ridding Flock of Poor Layers Cuts Egg Price 6 Cents Dozen

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1.—How culling the farm poultry flock at this time of the year to get rid of poor layers cuts the feed bill for the hens and lowers the cost of producing eggs is brought out in records before and after culling by James H. Everman, a Bourbon county farmer living near Paris, who cooperated with the extension division of the College of Agriculture in having his flock of White Leghorns culled as a demonstration to show farmers in that section of the state the value of the practice. Taking 161 culls out of his flock of 506 hens lowered his feed cost in producing eggs from approximately 18 cents a dozen to around 12 cents a dozen, according to his records.

In the week just previous to culling the 506 hens laid a total of 1,246 eggs, which has an average of 178 eggs a day from the entire flock, or 35 per cent production. After the 161 poor layers were taken out in the culling process the remaining 345 hens laid a total of 1,118 eggs in a week, which was an average of 159 eggs a day from the entire flock, or 51 per cent production.

During the week before culling the flock averaged less than two and a half eggs a week for each hen in it, but after the culling the average production of each of the 345 good layers was exactly three and a half eggs a week. Before culling, Mr. Everman had to feed an average of 34 hens daily to get a dozen eggs, but after culling was able to get a dozen eggs each day from every 23 hens in the flock. It took seven pounds of feed for every dozen eggs that the flock produced before the poor layers were taken out, but only four and a half pounds for every dozen after the culling.

"Proper culling is the right system to use in getting rid of poor layers," Mr. Everman said in a letter thanking poultry specialists of the college for culling his flock.

FARM AND HOME NEWS FROM OVER KENTUCKY

Soybeans are winning favor with Campbell county farmers as a practical legume crop that deserves a place in many crop rotations, according to a report of County Agent H. P. Link. Approximately 55 farmers who have never grown the crop before this year are cooperating with him and the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington in growing it to demonstrate its value of their neighbors.

Fifteen farm boys and girls of Taylor county are getting off to the right start in the dairy business by developing purebred Jersey heifers as their junior agricultural club project. County Agent William Johnstone says in a report. Many of the youngsters plan to use the calves as the foundation for future herds of their own.

Community programs of work are helping farmers and their wives in a number of Todd county communities work out their most important farm and home problems by practical and recommended methods, according to County Agent I. C. Graddy, who helped map out the programs. Soil improvement work outlined in the program for one community already has resulted in approximately 500 tons of limestone being used to build up worn out land.

Union county is now the leading Kentucky county in the nation-wide "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, a total of 266 farmers and livestock owners in that county having become members of the drive by agreeing to use nothing but purebred sires in all their breeding work. The campaign is being conducted by the federal department of agriculture in cooperation with the state agricultural colleges and county agricultural agents to replace scrub and grade breeding animals on farms of the country with purebreds. County Agent L. C. Brewer, working with the College of Agriculture at Lexington, has enrolled enough members to make Union county the fourth one among all those in the country in the campaign.

The "WATER" Has Been "Squeezed Out

In connection with the spectacular agitation as to "Water" in railroad stocks—clearly demagogic, and stirred up by a few publicity-seeking politicians for purely selfish ends—it was stated that the railroad stocks of the country carried "Water" to the extent of six or seven billion dollars.

The resultant investigations, which were forced on Congress by these agitators, have been going on for ten years, at an expense of eighty-five million dollars (fifty-four million dollars of which was paid by the railroads) and the recent tentative valuation reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission, based on a survey of thirty-eight railroad systems—comprising a little less than one-third of the railroad mileage of the country—show the net value of these railroads, above capitalization, to be $741,393,984.00,—thus proving that, not only are these stocks not "Watered" but that they are substantially solidified.

The truth is, that American railroad stocks have always been singularly free from "Water"; and that in the few instances in which stocks were "Watered", the water has been squeezed thoroughly out by repeated re-organizations and expenditures for improvements which have actually raised property values above the amount of the outstanding securities.

As a matter of fact, the railroads, while now carrying the greatest traffic on record, have not been earning annually the 5½ per cent on valuation which Congress has said that they are entitled to; and the situation therefore seems to call for less interference with the railroads in running their own business; rather than for further restrictions through unwise and unwarranted legislation.

BUICK MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT ON 1921 MODEL TODAY

Introduced to the public today, the 1921 Buick cars offer renewed proof of the unreliability of rumor. For months gossip of what Buick would do on August 1 has been prevalent and often solemnly asserted by the wisecracks as "on good authority." Yet so little of it proves true, and so many complete surprises characterize these cars, that Buick is to be congratulated on keeping its secret so well.

With fifty per cent more power claimed for its famous valve-in-head six cylinder engine, its successful external brakes extended to four wheels in both sixes and fours, a specially designed carburetor that is heralded as a wonder, and literally dozens of other developments, major and minor, Buick proves that its engineering staff has been "very much on the job."

The thousand who are certain to see these cars in the leading centers this week—and very soon in the show rooms of all Buick dealers—will observe a change in body lines, undoubtedly influenced to a degree by recent refinements in foreign design. Thus a more modish appearance, even than the 1923 Buick has been accomplished by a departure in radiator and hood contour on both open and closed bodies. This applies to both the six and four cylinder models, of which there are fourteen body styles.

Exterior features noted at first glance are the new head lamps, nickel radiator on the sixes, water tight hood hinge, open hood support, newly designed crown fenders, a more effective weather-proof windshield strip, operating instruments conforming in design to the headlamps, flush ventilator, new dust apron and a heavier and better looking gasoline tank.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. J. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.
